The French airship Alsace was one of the largest and most powerful in the service of that country. It was a dirigible, of a type developed since the war began. A French war office statewar began. A French war office state-ment issued October 1 stated that the preceding night it bombarded the junction of Amagne Lucquy, and the stations Attigny and Vouziers. The airship was shelled all along its jour-ney, but returned safely to its base, having been hit only by a few splinters of shells, which caused no damage.

When that body was created by the national assembly at the time of the adoption of the constitution of February 25, 1875, provision was made for seventy-five life senators and 225 to be elected. In the revision of 1884 the suppression of life senators by extinction, and the transformation of their seats into elective seats, was decided upon. The last survivor of the life senators is M. Marcera, who was elected by the senate February 28, 1884, only a few months before the measure for suppression of life senators went into effect.

with the man I believe to be the most astute American observer in England. From this side of the channel he could see what Great Britain is doing more clearly than if he were in his chambers in the city of London.

"They have awakened," said he. "They know now what this war means to them. They are putting every ounce into the fight."

His statements are of the greater interest because he has been in a position to see from the inside much of what has happened. He is strongly proally, but he no more pretends to like England and the average Englishman than that individual assumes to like the United States and the average American. As an American he has resented the attitude of the British government toward the United States in the various occasions for friction that have arisen during the war. But he is the didn't go, either. is absolutely fair.

"I believe that Great Britain has done more in this war than any nation has ever done in war," said he, "and she is prepared to do more. It is my conviction that Germany can never whip har. It may be that Russia may be forced to make a separate peace. In London this is regarded as a grave possibility. France may be exhausted. It would make no difference to England. She would fight on."

England is by no means as pessimistic as all. She has never considered defeat possible. It is regarded as probable that the war will be a long one, and the people are quite resigned to fighting on until victory is gained. A false impression is produced by the continual scolding of the sturdy Britons who write letters to the public.

"They would have every man of military age in the fighting line and every other man and all the women engaged on war work," said he. "It isn't neces sary yet, but if it is necessary it will be done. If conscription becomes necessary there will be conscription. It is not necessary yet. England has raised 3,000,000 men by voluntary en-listment. No other nation ever did so much in proportion to population."

Now it monopolizes public attention. It is not only that the public realizes the importance to be attached to victory there. It also realizes the possible consequence of defeat."

It was news to us in Paris, so carefully is news censored, that the Zeppelins have done real damage in London on at least two occasions. Nevertheless, the American observer thinks the Zeppelins have failed to justify themselves.

The Full Measure of the Artist at his best

E stands at a receiving horn, that artist who makes a record, filled with desire to give the world the full, great measure of his best. His voice floods out, pulsing with feeling, rich in its wealth of golden tone-but-

Is it his fault that he cannot make his record with that velvet throated softness of tone which has helped to make his fame?

Alas! Wonderful as the phonograph unquestionably is, faults still remain in the process of making records. No method has yet been found that will record the softest and therefore the most delicate beauties of a singing tone. And so the artist must sing louder than is his wont — must sacrifice his marvelous pianissimos to the requirements of record making.

And furthermore, the phonograph itself—as it has been known, could not do justice to his lower, richer tones. Even though they were in the record, the phonograph could not reproduce them in all their rounded resonance. And so, a certain appreciable measure of his great art is lost to you.

Was lost, at least-"till the Vocalion came."

WHAT is this Aeolian - Vocalion BEAUTIES FROM YOUR which rectifies and makes more beautiful and perfect all phonograph records; which reveals for the first time, the depth and richness of the lower registers of voices and all instruments; which secures music's most lovely effect-the delicate pianissimo? What the Aeolian-Vocalion Is:

The Aeolian-Vocalion is a new phonograph, made by the greatest builders of musical instruments in the world-The Aeolian Company.

It is a phonograph embodying many inventions and utilizing acoustic principles of tone production that have been worked out in developing such impressive instruments as the pipe-organ and the piano-forte.

-The Aeolian-Vocalion accomplishes this for the first time

Its Sound-box of new and patented design takes from the record the vibrations made by low tones and translates them into living tones, fuller, richer and deeper than have ever come from a phonograph before.

-The Aeolian-Vocalion accomplishes this for the first time

Its Symphonetic Horn, built on new and scientific principles hitherto unused on phonographs, conserves every distinctive quality of tone that identifies different instruments and voices. Never from a phonograph have the subtle beauties of the "strings," "wood winds," "horns" and "brasses" of the orchestral choir been so manifest, nor the contrasting qualities of male and female voices, of tenor, soprano, contralto, baritone and bass, been so pronounced. - the Aeolian-Vocalion accomplishes this The Acolian= for the first time. Its Graduola, that wonderful invention Vocalion for artistically controlling tone, solves the great remaining problem of the phonograph. It enables you to sit at an appreciable distance from the instrument and with a simple pressure of your hand, delicately shade the music to your wishes. It enables you to put into the music pianissimos of exquisite delicacy which the artist was not able to put into his record. It enables you to introduce just the countless little shades of tone, with which the artist himself varies his every performance.

In other words-it gives you a part in the music, without altering the artist's own technique or expression. And it does this only when you want it to. You do not use the Graduola unless you wish to, as the Aeolian-Vocalion will play without it, just like other phonographs.

There are many other interesting and important advantages in the Aeolian-Vocalion. One of these is the simplest and best Automatic Stop yet produced. But to really appreciate this wonderful new Phonograph, you must see and hear it. We direct your attention therefore to the invitation that we present below.

You can buy a Vocalion for as low as $90—and terms for this instrument are but $5 a month. There are numerous exquisite stylesall, truly, pieces of beautiful furniture, all similar in quality of tone. We will make exchange arrangements for phonographs of other kinds.

AN INVITATION

"THE PHONOGRAPH THAT

CALLS FORTH HIDDEN

RECORDS"

We are anxious that all music lovers shall know by personal experience what the Vocalion can do. We cannot translate into words its tonal qualities. We therefore invite you and your friends to visit the store of our representatives. Hear, in a private room, any records you desire-to be played for you. If convenient, we suggest that you bring with you one or two of your own familiar records.

Perhaps play the Aeolian-Vocalion yourself. Hear how sweetly it brings out the buried beauties that records were not known to possess. You need not feel the slightest obligation for this really amazing experience. Consider it rather a favor granted us, in spreading the knowledge of the Aeolion-Vocalion among music
